CARCABUEY is a small town in the Cordoba province of Andalucia, situated in the Natural Park of the Sierras Subbeticas. It is a typical Spanish town of Moorish origin with several interesting churches and the ruins of a castle. There are 3 restaurants and many bars and small shops to choose from. The splendid cultural cities of Cordoba and Granada are approximately one hour away and Seville 2 hours. The nearest large town is Priego de Cordoba 6 km away-it is interesting to visit and has a large supermarket. During the year in Carcabuey several festivals are celebrated including Corpus Christi and Holy Week.

Steps down from the castle

The surrounding countryside is full of olive trees, producing oil of the highest quality. There is plenty of opportunity to enjoy superb walking at all levels. 5km away is Tinosa, the highest mountain in Cordoba province.

Cycling in the area is brilliant both on and off road (we have bicycles at the house). To the north of the park is a 58 km cycle path, linking several towns, where the olive oil train used to run. Interesting wildlife can be spotted, including Griffin vultures, and the flowers are abundant and beautiful.

Carcabuey is approximately one and a half hours' drive from Malaga airport, where a car can be hired at competitive rates, especially if booked on line prior to departure from UK.
